

D.G. Wynn

D.G. Wynn was a field missionary with CRM (Church Resource Ministries) and worked side-by-side with Navigators in Glasgow, Scotland. Since her return from the field she's been a passionate missions advocate working in the local church and missions community of Denver, CO. She now has the distinct privilege of being the publisher of William Carey Library a 50-year-old publishing house dedicated to producing cutting-edge missiology for long and short-term workers.

She's been involved in short-term missions for almost 20 years and is a staunch advocate of church-wide prayer being key to prosperous ministry locally and internationally. D.G.

partnered with Cherry Hills Community Church and their outreach department to help tell this story of the work among the Chantik and inspire the next generation of missionaries—those who go across the world and across the street.

While "The Prayers of Many" was her first published book, it will by no means be the last. Look for her next book out in early 2019, it's called "Missionwise: The Compact Guide to Before, During, and After Your Short-term Trip". It was written to improve the experience of short-term missionaries and their efficacy in the field and afterward.
